

Position Description: UX Developer

About Consensus Point

Consensus Point is on the leading edge of applying social predictive analytics to aggregate internal and external market intelligence. A Nashville based early-stage company with west coast attitude; we are a pioneer in the exciting enterprise collective intelligence industry, serving some of the most innovative global organizations - such as Best Buy, Motorola, and GE. The Consensus Point solution is a social application built around a prediction market to capture crucial leading indicators that help accelerate decision making.

Consensus Point provides an established, comprehensive solution, including Software as a Service (SaaS) with an on-demand or on-site license delivery model, project management, and consulting services. The platform is based on secure, open systems and scalable, three-tiered architecture and has an API for integration with any enterprise technology platform.

Roles and Responsibilities

Consensus Point is seeking a software developer with entrepreneurial initiative and technical passion. The position will be responsible for development and support of new products and features using Ruby on Rails within a SCRUM process. This position will have a particular focus on user interface development. The developer should welcome implementation transparency, idea sharing and have a track record of meeting or exceeding deadlines.

Skills and Experience

The following attributes and characteristics are required:

- User Experience (UX) engineering experience
- Javascript, esp. JQuery
- 3 years software development experience
- Experience developing Ruby on Rails 3 applications
- Rails 3 asset pipeline knowledge
- Excellent understanding of templating technology, esp. ERB templating
- HTML 5, CSS
- Experience with UI design
- Ability to show a design portfolio
- Experience developing UX for mobile applications
- Experience working in an Agile development team
- Good communication skills and emotional intelligence. We are an early-stage company, you must be able to roll with the punches and play well with others.
- Willing to go the extra mile and do what it takes to deliver.
- Ability and willingness to collaborate with internal and external resources during solution development.
- Strong interest in emerging technologies.

Please reply with resume to careers@consensuspoint.com